Journalism Students work diligently.

Even when not occupied by a class, the Publications Room was usually buzzing. Members of the newspaper and yearbook classes were always dropping in to work on unfinished projects or to complete a dealine.

Publilcations students didn't always get the recognition they deserved. It takes hours of work to write and layout a paper ot a two-page yearbook spread, something which most people don't understand. Sixty very dedicated students wrote the stories, shot the photos, printed the photos, and laid out the pages.

Whether the yearbook debuted on time and whether there was an issue of The Word per month depended upon how much advertising was sold by the staffers and how many successful fund raisers had been accomplished. Both publications, The Worod and Introspectus, were costly to publish, students do not pay the full cost involved in the production, therefore the extra was made up by staffers.

Yearbook staffers raised an extra $3,000 to complete yearbook specifications, while newspaper staffers raised an extra $2,200 in advertising and sales to publish The Word.

There was always something different going on in the science department. A wide variety of classes ranged from general science to advanced biology, in which a collelge credit could be received.

Many aspects of the sciences were covered in biology, chemistry, and physics classes. These classes did not just consist of reading and takng tests. In biology the students disected frogs, pigs, and even cats. The chemistry students performed many experiments in their labs; included in these projects were the making of lead based paint tostudying about protein. The physics students learned the laws of motion and astronomy.

Roland Crane, an English teacher for Honors Seminar, took another step forward in the decoration of the Red area. Next to his large United States map Mr. Crane's students painted a mural of Moby Dick. The large, colorful painting was useful as a visual aid for the novel as well as for decoration.

This act caught the attention of the English teachers. They expressed interest in it and many hoped to do something similar in their own classrooms.

The English department as a whole became somewhat stabolized. There were no additions to the department and no retirements. Although more stable, the department was still overcrowded with students.

When presented with problem, several teachers suggested that new classes be added in order to give the students more English elective courses from which to choose. Although only one new class was added, more are likely to come in the future. The overcrowding didn't lessen the quality of the education though, and the English teachers still offered their exceptional talents to all the students.

Many changes were made this year in the social studies area. A new class was added to the curriculum called Peer Counseling, which was taught by Mr. Max Zittel. This class traveled to the middle and elemantary school classrooms to talk to the 5th and 8th graders about high school life.

Advanced psychology was again taught by Mrs. Lynda Slaggert. This class was geared toward those students interested in the psychology field as a career. It involves class work as well as work in the area, in schools working with physically and mentally handicapped children.

Mr. Zittel retired this year at the end of the first semester. After teaching at Ike only a year and a half in the psychology area

The basic social studies classes such as history, government, and world cultures remained unchanged.

Twelve computers and many overheads distinctly designated the green area as the math department. Computers were the wave of the future and to keep up with developments, a B.A-.S.I.C. II class was added to the curriculum. Taught my Mr. Dana, the class further educated students in the B.A.S.I.C. language on Apple II computers. Mr. Swartzendruber was a new addition to the computer classes. The emphasis on higher math was still going strong through the Honors math program and Mrs. Dunham stressed this saying, "...very good honors classes."

Every student learns at a differ ent speed. Here, at Eisenhower, there are classes for slower learn ers and accelerated classes for people who learn more quickly.

Last year, the Honors Seminar class was expanded to include Art, Theater, and Music Appreciation in addition to the original English and Social Studies classes. Honors teachers include Mr. Rol Crane–English, Mr. Jim Teal–Social Studies, Mr. Walt Nagel–Art, Miss Ruth Anne Sowle–Theater, and Mr. Tom Hardy–Music Appreciation.

Other Support classes, such as; Spelling, English, Reading, Math, Government are taught by Mrs. Joyce Dewolf–Ott, Ms. Rhonda Beck, and Miss Paulette La Mar.

By including these classes in the curriculum, Eisenhower caters to every students needs.

What does family mean to you?

What is happening with marriage in out society?

How are other families different from yours?

Both juniors and seniors found the answer to these questions and more in their Family Living this year. Students got to learn more about themselves and others around them. They also were able participate in a mock wedding, in which they got to experience the joys and frustrations of marriage. There was also a reception after the wedding in the Home Economics area which was sponsored by the Foods and Nutrition class. These students prepared the food and decorated the wedding cake.

Comprehensive Homemaking class which consisted mainly of freshmen discussed subjects such as foods and nutrition, initerior design, clothing and textiles, personality and family relations, pregnancy, and child development. The class was able to attend Saginaw General Hospital to view the facilities, delivery room, and the nursery.

Computers Enrich Business Area

Computers are now a big part of Eisenhower's Business Department. There was a new room added calles the business computer lab, in which there are now six Apple II computers and a better quality Apple printer. Instructors planned to add six additional computers for a total of twelve.

Officie machines and word processing classes used the computers to prepare themselves for businesses using computers and business software. Students learned to print letters, resumes, and term papers on the computer. Students enter and process data such as budgets, checks, bank statements, and reports. The Students study the community and learned about computer related careers.

Although the Eisenhower Varsity Girls' Soccer Team had a few set backs in the beginning, coach Rol Crane felt the physical endurance was needed to reach their goal. Coach Rol "Froglegs" Crane puts more stress on physical conditioning than in ball control. The girls played well throughout the season defeating such teams as Brighton, Kalamazoo Central, and MacArthur.

The Pre Regional playoffs placed the rival teams together once more, the outcome was Eisenhower defeating MacArthur with a score of 2–1. Moving on into Regional play Eisenhower played Brighton and Kalamazoo Central, defeating both. In semi–final competitinio, the girls took on Troy. In the last 19 seconds of the second overtime Eisenhower's Amy Freihling scored the winning goal placing them into State Final play–offs against Stevenson. This game proved to be too much for the girls. Though they suffered a loss of 0–8, they still placed second in the state.

Some of the girls' efforts did not go unnoticed as junior Janet DeGroat and sophomore Jill Barber were placed on the All–State second and honorable mention teams respectively. Janet was also named most valuable player on the team while Kelly McMath was awarded the coaches award.

Track team led by underclassmen

The 1982–83 Girls' Track Team was led by outstanding long jumper and high jumper, senior, Ruth Hare. Their season proved to be very successful with the help of underclassmen. Among some of the outstanding sprinters are freshman, Agnes Halstead and junior, Dawn Maddox. Leading the team in the shotput was sophomore Kim Lewendowski.

Getting through the cold, windy, and wet weather is tough enough, but losing one of your star pitchers is another thing. The girls' Varsity Softball Team had to put up a quarter of their season without senior pitcher Jodi McDonald, who was out for an operation.

The team did "ok" withtout McDonald, winining four of the six games. The two defeats were to Bay City Western, 1–0 and 12–4.

Leading the team in hitting was sophomore Lisa Frederickson with a .397 batting average and also lead with 19 R.B.I.'s. Frederickson was voted to the All–Conference team. Also making first team All Conference were seniors Jodi McDonald and Kathy Paquette.

The Girls Softball Team went on to tie with Bridgeport for the White Pine Conference title with an 8–2 record. The team finished out the rest of the year with a 19–5 record.

Bad weather no problem for J.V. baseball

The bad weather did not stop the J.V. baseball team from being tough contenders in the 1982–83 season for the White Pine Conference.

The team had its ups and downs in the conference. Beating John Glenn by a slim margin and just sliding by Mt. Pleasant in extra innings. Splitting to both MacArthur and Bridgeport was their only set back. With a 6–2 record it still entitled the J.V. team for a W.P.C. titled for their fourth consecutive year.

Leading the team to a productive 12–5 record were sophomore pitchers, Marlow Medina and Eric Donaghy.

Record breaking was big part of season

In 1983, the boys track season was a successful one. While participating in six dual meets, their record was 2–3–1. At the regional meet, the varsity track team raced to a sixth place by competing with sixteen other schools.

Dan Foor earned first place twice in the shotput and the discus. He also broke the state record in the shotput with a throw of 60 feet 3 inches. Also earnig first place twice in two events was Tom Seagreen who ran the mile and two mile.

Coach Hugh Matson's track team received fourth place in the White Pine Conference. At this final meet of the season, Dan Foor was the champion again in both the shotput and discus. Placing second in the two mile was Tom Seagreen

Tennis team first: Qualify for state

Qualifying for the 1983 state tennis tournament was a first for the Ike Varsity netters under the coaching of Bill Stocker. At the Regional Tournament, the team earned a second place. Having a record of 11–3, the varsity team received second place in the White Pine Conference.

Many individual players, displaying their tennis playing ability, earned recognition. Named to the 1983 all Conference Team were seniors Craig Westwood and Karl Jones, with records of 16–5 and 14–7 respectively. Honorable mention awards were given to Kevin Deno, Paul Paeglis, Bejie Ortiz and Kevin Catterfeld. Selected as the most valuable player for the 1983 season was Craig Westwood.

The J.V. team also had a successful season. Under coach Jim Benjamin, the netters had a record of 7–2.

Motivation and dedication provide winning season

It was a winning season this year for the Freshmen Football Team with their five and four record. The squad was the largest in eight years with 55 players.

Number 27, Pete Garcia starred in nine games with a record of seven touchdowns, 156 carries, and 1103 yards rushing.

Ron Austin, number 44, scored eight touchdowns and four extra points in nine games. Along with his 111 carries, he rushed for 900 yards.

On defense, Tim Markey made 65 tackles and Bill Vondette made 58.

Supported by coaches, Mr. Hugh "Hoot" Matson and Mr. Bob Nuvine, the players stressed that their motivation and dedication pushed them on through a tough season.

Hemlock's team may have appeared big and strong, but turned out to be small in courage and in size. On this frigid night, the team added another mark on their side of the season scoreboard.

No one was looking forward to the game against MacArthur, and it turned out that their intuition was right. They lost this important match 34 to 6.

J.V. defeats MacArthur

Places third in White Pine

Finishing 3–6 overall, the Eisenhower Junior Varsity managed to place third in the White Pine Conference by winning three of five conference contests. Losses to Bridgeport and John Glenn prevented them from moving up in the standings. Buena Vista, Mt. Pleasant, and MacArthur 93–28 in three games accounted for the victories. Over the course of the season, the J.V.'s scored 180 points while giving up 218 points.

Leading the ground game, the backfield duo of Chris Federico and Matt Hubbard combined for 1668 yards while scoring 82 of the 180 Commander points. Fullback, Ross Bitterling, chipped in 502 yards and scored six touchdowns. Throwing for 870 yards, quarterback, Mark Gendregske, completed 45 of 104 attempts. Nine of Gendregske's 45 completions went for touchdowns while he was intercepted only six times. End, Bud Klass, caught 21 for 330 yards for the Commanders in receiving. Following Klass was his counterpart, Larry Kuebler, catching eleven passes for 118 yards. Klass and Kuebler scored five and two touchdowns, respectively.

Sparking the defense, linebackers, Mike Bocker and Jim Mallery, were at the top in four denfensive categories. Bocker led in tackles with 112, sacks with twelve, blocked punts and fumble recoveries with one each. Mallery followed Bocker with 69 tackles, four sacks, blocked a punt, and a fumble recovery. Bud Klass led the team with three interceptions including two in the Mt. Pleasant game. Ross Bitterling chipped in two interceptions along with 83 tackles.

Losing all four non–conference games prevented the team from staying over .500 for the season. The J.V. team was again coached by Mr. Al Taylor. He was assisted by Mr. Mike Murphy.

After struggling to a 2–2 start, the Eisenhower Varsity Football team coasted to a 6–3 finish including a share of the White Pine Conference championship. The championship was the first since 1975 as they tied Bay City John Glenn with identical 4–1 records. The 17–14 win over John Glenn plus an easy victory over rival MacArthur paved the way. A surprising 24–14 loss to Mt. Pleasant early in the season almost ended their chances.

The homecoming game proved to be an exciting game for the players and fans alike. The Commanders went into the lockerroom down 27–7. After the crowning of the queen during the half–time festivities, the Varsity came back to win 35–27.A 73 yard punt return by senior Brad Navarro highlighted the comeback. Strong running by junior Ron Malott provided a balanced offense in the second half. Eisenhower also defeated Essexville Garber, an 8–1 playoff team, 17–0 in the season ending game.

Navarro's punt return in the Bridgeport game was not the longest of the season. Senior Tom Wight returned one for 95 yards against Buena Vista to set an all–time Eisenhower record for longest punt return. Other records to fall included the field goal record. Senior Greg Gendregske broke the season mark and career mark by kicking three and four field goals, respectively. Junior Eric Donaghy scored eighteen points on three touchdowns to tie the most points in a game record. The Commanders as a team tied a record by intercepting eleven passes during the season. They share the record with the 1980 team.

Leading the offensive charge, Eric Donaghy gained 902 rushing yards. Following him was Ron Malott with 401 yards. Donaghy also led receiving with ten receptions for 96 yards. Sophomore Brett Maddox and junior Tom Schwannecke were next with eight and seven catches, respectively. Greg Gendregske had three touchdown catches. Quarterback John Krzyzaniak finished the season completing 37 of 65 passes for 448 yards and three touchdowns.

Defensively, the Commanders were led by the foursome of Brad Navarro, Tom Wight, juniors Pete Vondette and Tom Kubczak. Wight and Navarro had four and three interceptions, respectively, along with three fumble recoveries. Vondette led the team in tackles with 37 solos and 72 assists for a total of 109. Kubczak followed with twenty solos and 58 assists for 78 tackles. Brett Maddox chipped in 62.

At the season–ending banquet, the all–conference awards were announced. On the offensive first team were senior center Bruce Morgan, senior tackle Randy Misekow, and Eric Donaghy. The defensive first team includes Brad Navarro and Pete Vondette. Kicker Greg Gendregske also made first team. Coach Lou Fenton was named Class B–region 2 coach of the year. He was assisted by Mr. Joe Mikolajczak and Mr. Vito Tutera.

"It was a difficult year, but the guys played hard and didn't give up," said Ike's varsity soccer coach, Bill Hartle, as he summed up his fourth season with the team.

When asked what made the year so difficult for them, Coach Hartle responded with a number of reasons. For starters, Eisenhower had only three returning players from last year, seniors Ken Bublitz, Arik Bry, and Jeff Beird. Along with Jeff Ross, there were only four senior members on the team. Injuries also played a major part in the '83 season. Goalie, Ken Bublitz, was injured midway into the season and replaced by junior, Scott Bowers. It wasn't long after that, when Bowers was also hurt, and replaced by David Bry. Still another injury put junior, Kent Nordin, out of play for a few games.

Inexperience was a strike against the team, which was mostly made up of sophomores and juniors. Although their standings showed seven wins, nine losses, and one tie, the Commanders worked well together as a team, and kept up their spirits. They waged a tough battle, defending their goal and attacking the enemies, to the season's end.

Showing leadership qualities, playing skills, and experience on the field, seniors Jeff Beird and Jeff Ross, and junior Kent Nordin were named this season's outstanding players.

When the 1983 J.V. soccer season began, the team, like varsity, lacked older, more experienced players. Many of last year's J.V. players were moved up to fill spots on the varsity team, so the J.V. had to rely mainly on freshmen members. Once the season began, the J.V. team also lost sophomore goalie Dave Bry to varsity when varsity's goalie was injured.

Contrary to what was expected, the scores proved that the team did well for being as "young" as it was. Coach Pradip Kissoondyal said the guys worked well together as a team and they showed much improvement by the end of the season.

Sophomore Matt Maturen scored the most goals for the team and was awarded the most outstanding player. Sophomores Dave Bry, Nathan Blecke, Richard Verdoni, and Mark Halstead also showed outstanding performance on the field.

Cross country runs into trouble

The year was said to be a rebuilding year by many of the runners and also by Coach Paul Singer,an Ike alumni.

Last fall, the team had a dual record of two wins and four losses. The team finally started running like Commanders after the Eisenhower Invitational on October eighth. After that time, the team started running with confidence and determination. The highlight of the season was beating MacArthur in a dualmeet. Leading the team to victory was Dan Clynick with a time of 18:39.

The team was led by captain, John Cox. An honorable mention went to sophomore, Steve Carter.The only girl runner this year was Linda Grob. She turned in her best time at the Eisenhower Invitational. It was 25:22.

Adding depth to the team were juniors, Todd Seagren and Clayton Wuckert and sophomores, Andy Johnson and Phil Yien.

Under the coaching of Mr. Terry Boswell, The Girls' Varsity Basketball team ended it's season with a 13–7 overall record. Coach Boswell remarked that this was the best record in the history of the girls' basketball team. Final standings of the White Pine Conference put the Commanders in third place for the 1983–84 season.

One of the highlights for the season was the surprising victory over Buena Vista. The Commanders broke Buena Vista's White Pine winning streak of 14 games while beating them by 24 points.

Named to the All White Pine Conference first team was senior Jennifer Haskin. Jennifer was also nominated Most Valuable Player for Eisenhower. Junior, Becci Allman, received Most Improved Player for Eisenhower's 83–84 season. Allman, senior, Sue Shemanski, and senior, Stacy Stelter, recieved Honorable Mentions to the All White Pine Conference team.

Ike golf survives with new coach

Although the Varsity Golf team had a dismal 1–11 record it showed many positive things, like the play of Mike Anderson, for instance. Mike may only have been a freshman, but he was a medalist nine times and had the low score of the team of an 81 (18) at Green Acres and a 33 (9) at the same place.

Being basically a young team, their coach, John Karam, said, "This should be the team to beat in two years." With a starting lineup consisting of two freshmen, two sophomores, one junior, and two seniors, that may very well become a true statement.

Like the varsity team, the junior team was inexperienced as well. Also like the varsity, the J.V. record was quite dismal only winning one out of nine attempts. Jason Wood took individual honors as a medalist five times. Jason, one of seven on the team, also recorded the lowest score, a 47 shot at Swan Valley Country Club. As mentioned, there were seven freshmen, one sophomore, and one junior on the team. The junior happened to be the only girl to play golf in the area. Her name was Carol Tack.

Girls netters display potential

Under the guidance of Coach Jim Teal, the Girls' Varsity Tennis team concluded a strong season with eight wins and four losses. The team placed second in the White Pine Conference, close behind the first place winner, Douglas MacArthur.

"Our team was pretty good considering we had only three varsity returnees," said senior Kim West who was chosen to recieve the Most Valuable Player award. The Most Improved Player was sophomore Patty Rossiter. Senior Kim West and freshmen Kala Karu and Elaine Bermudez were named to the White Pine Conference first team and honorable mentions were Jill Barber, Amy Meyers, and Carrie West. The team placed fifth in their region. The team was able to attend the Monroe Invitational in Southeastern Michigan. Even though they placed seventh, it was the team's highlight of the year.

Outstanding season for first year coach

Swimming their way through a tough season, the Girls' Varsity Swim Team landed a record of 11-3. Included in this winning season was a second place finish at the Tri-City Championships. This was the best finish the Eisenhower team had ever attained at this meet.

During their season, junior Denise Brown broke two individual records and was involved in breaking a relay record. These included the 100-yd butterfly, the 100-yd backstroke, and the 400-yd freestyle relay.

The team acquired a new coach, Bob Oliver, who was instrumental in leading the team forward. His experience comes from his past years of coaching the Boys' Varsity Swim Team at MacArthur. Oliver has a winning attitude which was conveyed to the girls.

Nine of the team's 22 swimmers went to the state meet in Grand Rapids. These swimmers included: Beth Anderson, Crissy Douglas, Denise Brown, Sharon Hill, Lisa Friesorger, Jenny Larsen, Tammi Baxter, Nikki Kelsey, and Bridget McLaughlin.

New coach + solid team effort = fabulous season for spikers

Girls' volleyball in 1984 gave Eisenhower another remarkable sports team to brag about. The team's impressive record was proof enough of their ability. The girls , with the help of their terrific new coach, made a complete turn–around from last year's "rebuilding" season.

Inevitable success was shown when the "spikers" took first place out of eight teams present at the Chippewa Hills pre–season tournament. This victory included defeats of Big Rapids, Manistee, and Alma.

After winning a few regular season games, the Varsity Volleyball Team took an outstanding second place at the all day Delta tournament. This, being only their second year at the tournament, made their second place finish out of 24 teams even more remarkable. Triumphs at Delta included victories over MacArthur, Meridian, Oscoda, and St.Petes. The team's final major tournament was the Garber Invitational where the Commanders took another first place finish out of twelve teams. The girls beat Midland High early in the afternoon. Then, in their toughest match of the day, beat top–ranked Garber, two games to one, in the semi–finals. The final victory of the day came over John Glenn (15–6, 17–15) to bring the girls a well earned first. Lisa Frederickson was named most valuable player of the tournament while Amy Dornseifer was selected to the seven member all–tournament team.

Successes like these were a team effort brought together by the girl's new coach, Terri Phillion. Terri was a graduate of C.M.U. and a four year volleyball player both at Central and also during high school. Terri's coaching ability and personality brought the team together as friends and as competitors.

Although their successful season was a team effort, certain strong points of the team musn't go unrecognized. One of the spiker's most valuable players was junior Shelley Heney. Her fantastic speed, agility, and overall ability were an inspiration to the rest of the team. High jumpers, Lisa Frederickson and Becci Allman, continually spiked balls in their opponents faces. These spikers were set up by the two awesome setters, Amy Dornseifer, and Ann Swartzendruber. Seniors, Julie Brasseur, Jaque Gosen, Stacy Stelter, and Pam Wisniewski, consistently showed their leadership and athletic abilities.

These individual achievements added special talents to the girls' team effort. This group effort, sparked by Terri Phillion, led the Girls' Varsity Volleyball Team to one of their best seasons ever.

The J.V. Girls, with their new coach, Barb Pohlman, experienced another winning season. Barb said that the girls' "extremely high skill level" led them to success.

This was Coach Pohlman's third year with volleyball. After playing two years on Delta's team, she went into coaching; first at St. Pete's, and then at Delta as assistant coach. She helped the entire team become competitive, instead of just focusing on the starters.

Outstanding players on the team included setter and co-captain, Tara Schultz, co-captain, Paula Klerekoper, Jill Barber, Lynn Brady, Nicole Gallagher, and freshman sensation, Christy Misekow. These girls possessed exceptional talent which led to the team's impressive overall performance. The entire team showed promise for next year.

"Despite their scores, those guys went out there and acted like winners." Said Eisenhower's boys varsity swimming coach Earl Bash.

According to coach Bash, the 1983-84 team was young. The small team consisted of six returning swimmers from last year and six new swimmers. Of the returning six, only two were seniors, Mark Almond and Dave Paquette.

Dave Paquette proved to be the best diver in the history of Eisenhower, setting a new pool diving record of 252.15. Junior Roger Cantu, the team's top scorer, had the 4th best time of all Ike's backstrokers. Both Paquette and Cantu qualified in the State meet for diving and backstroke, respectively. They also both received the Coaches Award, which went to the swimmer who had the most desire to succeed and never gave up.

When it came to deciding who should receive the award for the most improved, coach Bash decided to award to every swimmer on the team with a medal. "They all deserve it. There was not one person on nthe whole team who didn't improve his score!", he said.

The overall M.V.P. award went to Dave Paquette, who was also awarded the most valuable senior. The medals for most valuable junior went to Roger Cantu, most valuable sophomore to Chris Burt, and most valuable freshman to John Shabluk.

Eisenhower varsity basketball. When you hear those words, do you think of top rebounders, top scorers, or even the tallest player? Probably not. Most likely you think of the team record.

Eisenhower basketball 1983–84, a great season. With a regular season record totalling sixteen wins and four losses, the cagers entered the honorary archives of Eisenhower history. They became the team with the best overall regular season record in Ike history. This entry coupled with a tie for the most wins ever in the White Pine Conference, eight, made this a memorable year.

"We beat teams that people thought we couldn't–at the beginning of the year," said Coach Terry Boswell. This was certainly a true statement for Buena Vista, Sts. Peter and Paul, and Hemlock were among the teams that were recorded on scoreboards everywhere as Eisenhower wins.

Much of the success of this team was chalked up as team talent, not individual talent. The team was made up of twelve players who were very close in talent and ability. There were no real "stars". The truth in this statement is evident in the balanced scoring between the players. Three starters averaged double figure scoring per game.

Although there weren't any "stars" on the team, there were always leaders on the statistics board. This year's top stealer and top assist man was junior Pete Vondette. Junior Willie Hale led the lists of rebounders and scorers.

Rewards for this team came in two forms. The runner–up in the White Pine Conference and a rank in the honorable mention category of the state rankings were payment for the many hours of practice put into making this a record shattering year.

As this book went to press, the basketball team had secured their first win in the district tournament. (vs. Swan Valley)

1984 proved a prime season for the Junior Varsity Basketball Team. With their 15 and 4 season, they proved they could accomplish the rigorous task of defeating their tough opponents. Coach "Bear" Dulak developed the team into outstanding ball players. He prepapred them for the possibility of playing on the Varsity Team next year.

Standouts on the team included Lindsay Wright with a high of 23 points against Hemlock. He finished the season with an average of 14 points. Another was Brett Maddox with a high of 22 points against Swan Valley. His season was highlighted by an average of 13 points. Both Tim Gilleylen and freshmen John Wilson had a high of 20 points in important games.

The team's fifteenth match of the season was against one of their toughest rivals, Sts. Peter and Paul High School. They were defeated by St. Pete's earlier in the season in the Crusaders gymnasium, but when they arrived in Commander territory, the tables were turned! This match turned out to be one of the most remarkable ever. The game went into double overtime and resulted in a *Commander takeover, 70–67!

Another rival match was against MacArthur. Ike pounded on the Generals both time the two teams met. At MacArthur, Eisenhower marched over them with a 57–43 score. The home game resulted in a huge upset for the Generals, 69–49.

The home court became a happy sight for the J.V. team and a frightening one for their opponents. Ike won every home game except one against Mt. Pleasant. There really was such a thing as a home court advantage. By Lisa Luplow

The Eisenhower Freshman Basketball Teams won basketball games and won often. The two teams combined for a 29–4 record on a .878 winning percentage. As a result of losing only one White Pine game between them, both teams finished on top of the conference.

The Freshman "A" Team finished the season 14–3 on the year. Their losses included two to St. Pete's and once to MacArthur. The team avenged the loss to their "down the road" rivals by crushing MacArthur in the second meeting by 32points. In that game, guard Matt Maturen had 6 assists, other top individual performances on the year include a 37 point game by Phil Brefka. Rounding out the starting five were Randy Kruska, Manish Dedhia, and Matt Hirschenberger. The "A" team was again coached by Mr. Jim Noble.

The Freshman "B" team capped a near perfect record of 15–1. Their only blemish, a loss to Bay City Central. They were led through the season by starters MattEurich, Ted Davis, Ron Austin, Tom Kramer, and Jason Bordeaux. They were coached by Mr. Tom Rybak.

Ski team snows MacArthur

The Ski Team hit the slopes looking for action this year. With the lack of snow last year they were anxious for the season to get underway.

The girls season was climaxed with an upset over MacArthur. Leading the team was senior Tammi Fickes, with a time of 30.62.

The guys team also beat MacArthur by a score of 22 to 15. Leading the COmmanders was senior Jeff Beird with a time of 26.69. Three major factors in the successful guys ski team season were Jeff Beird, Jeff Ross, and Eric Donaghy.

5,4,3,2,1...the applause began as history was made! The Eisenhower hockey team outmaneuvered and conquered rival Douglas MacArthur for the first time ever,one triumph not to be forgotten. Ambition created from twenty-three dedicated young men carried the team throughout the year causing upsets and feats of excitement. Fifteen wins, one tie, and six losses produced a record the team was proud to possess. Tremendous amounts of strength and effort were contributed by each player during early morning hour practices attended three times a week.

An exhibition scrimmage against Portage Northern in a trip to Kalamazoo polished the team's skill of aggressiveness acquired from their numerous practices and spirit.

John Cox, captain, along with alternate captains Dan Drapp and Tim Konsdorf kept inspirations high during the entire season. A unique kind of team togetherness also played its part in the accomplishments achieved. Under instruction of coach David Michelson and assistant coaches Tom Cox, Ron Wisniewski, and Jules Warba, this team turned hopes of a winning season into reality.

After taking their first five matches of the year, Vic Dockham's wrestlers hit some tough opposition and ended the season at 5–5. Senior co–captians Randy Misekow and Darren Ramirez helped the team to their best start in years.

Misekow, with a 20–6 record, was named to the All Conference Team, along with sophomores Roger Nickel and Brad Balderstone, each with a record of 20–12. Ramirez, 24–14, was an All–Conference, honorable mention pick.

According to the first year coach, this year's biggest problem was that there weren't enough members on the team and injuries compounded this problem.

Assemblies say," Up with spirit, down with drugs."

"Hey Commanders! YEAH! Was the cry for spirit at the Pep assemblies this year. As usual the seniors ruled except for one Pep assembly where the sophomores won the competition cheer.

The Master of Ceremonies was Mr.Al Larsen.

The Pep Club planned the assemblies under the leadership of President Pam Wisniewski, and Advisor Mr. Russ Spaulding.

The Homecoming assembly, as usual, was a very memorable event, with combined efforts from emcee Mr. Marvin, and piano player Jan Taylor. With the lights low, the trellis and the Homecoming sign were the center points of the assembly.

This year also brought us baseball star Bob Welch to talk about alcoholism. He told about what happened to him and how he handled his problem. Then he had a question and answer time with students.

Dimmed lights, music, flowers, candles, and the song of the year: "Shoot for the Moon" created the romantic atmosphere of Homecoming '83.

Two weeks of flurried activities of voting, planning and decorating came to aclimax on the weekend of October 14 and 15.

Friday night: Down 27–7 at half time, the Commanders cruised to a 35–27 victory, over Bridgeport, after Julie Brasseur was crowned the 1983 Homecoming Queen. Ironically, Julie received the crown from her sister, Michelle, last year's queen.

Saturday night: The Pep Club's hours of decorating all paid off. The student center was warmer and more comfortable than ever. Candles, daisies, and music by "Sound On Wheels" all contributed to the success of the evening.

Special days show your feelings.

This past year brought you three special days to show your feelings. The first was put on by the Varsity Pom Pon Squad, it was carnation day. The second was sponsored by the Yearbook Staff, it was computer fun. You could find ten people you were most compatable with. The third was put on by the Newspaper Staff, balloon day. You could send a message to a friend on a baloon. Lots of seniors said their good–byes this way.

Fridays are the days that high school students work for. There are many activities planned for that night that starts off the weekend. This year dances were the place to go and the number of people present proved that Ike dances were successful. The dances took place after football and basketball games and the students danced to the electrifying sounds of local disc jockeys.

Colored smoke, pulsating lights and video screens filled the student center. It was the year of Micheal Jackson while everyone danced to "Beat It", "Thriller", and "Billy Jean". The dress was more casual yet stylish with punk rock outfits, mini skirts and the ever popular jeans and sweaters.

Homocoming and Prom were the two formal dances of the year providing all of the students a chance to go "all out". Tuxes were fitted, dresses were chosen, reservations were made, pictures were taken, punches were mixed; a typical story book date. Homecoming took place in our student center and prom took place at Delta College.

Spring fever sets high temperatures at Ike

When the 1984 spring rolled around in Commander territory everything stayed just about the same, except for a few events.

To be exact there were three major events that separated spring from the rest of the year. These events, Easter vacation, prom, and graduation, happen every year but not necessarily the same way.

The fun started on April 19th, the beginning of Easter vacation, until the end of vacation, the 30th of April. Students did everything from beach bumming it in Florida to staying home and getting their tan at "Body Tan".

As soon as the students came back from vacation, they were preparing themselves for prom. It was five days later, on May 4th. The Junior–Senior prom was held in the traditional place, the Delta College Commons. With the guys in their tuxedos and the girls in thier full length dresses, the prom was again a success. The couples enjoyed music by D.J., "Sound Machine II".

After all that fun, the excitement still wasn't over. The seniors were graduated in only one month.

The commencements were held on June 3. The graduates had prepared for many years for that day and although it wasn't easy for the "Class of '84" to say goodbye to Ike after all the good times, they were very happy when they finally received their diplomas.

Exchanging customs and traditions is an experience never to be forgotten

Visiting a foreign country could be a frightening experience, but for most exchange students, it is an experience that will never be forgotten. Senior Susie Webb was an exchange student visiting Huddinge Sweden for 11 1/2 months. Susie learned much of the Swedish language by watching the sub headings on T.V. and movie screens. During her visit, she became very comfortable with Swedish customs and realized that there are fewer restrictions than in the U.S.A.

Another foreign exchange student, Matt Lake, was visiting the city of Falum, Sweden for one year. He had visited many cities during his stay.

School for Matt was hard at first because of the difficulty to understand the Swedish language but he managed to succeed in passing his courses.

Visiting the United States was unfortunate at first for exchange student Marcus Hittenbeck. Marcus was held up for an hour and a half at the Detroit airport after questioned about his identity. Marcus states, "I couldn't get into your country." Marcus plans to return to the state of Michigan after he finishes his days in high school to attend Michigan State University.

When Marcus was asked about his first pep assembly he stated, "I couldn't understand why people were getting so excited over a school activity."

"I am going to miss being together with my friends all the time," said exchange student Petra Kutz when asked what she would remember the most about Eisenhower. Petra lives in the city Hamm, Germany. It took her approximately 3 months before she became used to the slang terms that are used in the American language. She said, "When I first came here, everyone was so friendly and eager to be my friend." Petra was a member of the Varsity Tennis Team. Her stay in the United States was for one year.

A better understanding of customs and traditions were gained from the foreign exchange during the journey across the ocean to and from Eisenhower. These four students became accustomed to the way of like for other countries.

Starting off the year by selling M&M's, the National Honor Society raised money for the spring banquet. Having an accumulative grade point average of 3.5 or above was required to be a member of this club. Members met once a month, under the leadership of Mrs. Susan Schulz and Mrs. Connie Douglass.

Officers elected for the club were as follows: Tom Swartzendruber, president; Krista Hansen, vice president; Melinda Kocks, secretary–treasurer. The membership consisted of 45 students.

In January, National Honor Society members elected applicants for the Naional Merit Scholarship, they were Whitney Westwood and Crissy Douglas.

You don't meet too many girls these days whose hobbies include riding motorcycles. Sonia Swartzendruber has been riding motorcycles since she was eight years old. Sonia usually rides the 360 Honda, which is one of sev·en motorcycles that the Swartzendruber family owns.

During the summer,Sonia, her brother and her dad travel to Rose City and ride motorcycles through the fields and trails. "In the summer I ride the 360 almost everywhere I go." Sonia said. She also rides it back and forth to work.

Sonia has many other interests as well. On Saturdays she spends her time at Delta College, diving and at the "Y", playing racquetball.

Transfer student appreciates Ike atmosphere

Ike fans cheered in the stands for Willie Hale, a new junior in Commander territory. By starting on the Varsity Basketball team, Willie helped lead the team to victory. He left his school in Battle Creek to join Eisenhower. Willie actively participated in golf, baseball, and basketball.

Willie Hale likes Eisenhower! He came as a new student feeling that the school was cleaner, and the atmosphere more friendly. His transfer was lucky for the Commander community.

At the age of 11, Marshall Lambertson started playing the drums. Now, as a junior, he is a percussionist, mostly playing tenor and snare drums.

Marshall joined the band at Mackinaw his fifth grade year intending to play the trumpet, but his plans were changed when he recieved a set of drums from his cousin. His parents encouraged him to give it a try.

Marshall taught himself how to play and learned how to read music from the books at school. He liked it so much that he played all of his years at Mackinaw.

When Marshall came to Eisenhower, he started taking lessons at Whitehead Music Center. Now every Wednesday at 12:15, he squeezes in the lessons between classes.

As a freshman, Marshall played football, but found he was more interested in drum playing. He also put his efforts into playing in the Saginaw Drum Corps and earning a little extra money working at Wendy's.

On top of all this, Marshall took the time to write and teach cadence for the 1983 marching season.

Marshall says there is definitely a future in this field of music. He says, "I plan to attend Beliot, a private institute, and then possibly go on to Central Michigan to study percussion." Later, Marshall hopes to become an instructor of a drum line.

Modern day student keeps scouting traditions alive

As a sophomore at Eisenhower, Phil Yien has been a scout for the past five years. He is currently a Star Scout, which is just two ranks below an Eagle Scout. An Eagle Scout is the highest rank a scout can earn. Phil hopes to achieve his goal of becoming an Eagle Scout in a year or so.

He has attended many camps, such as Camp Rotary, Bear Lake, and Paul Bunyan. Phil really enjoys being in scouting and when asked what he expects to get out of scouting, he replied, "Being in Boy Scouts will probably help me later in life, because it teaches me leadership skills."

Phil expects to reach his goal of becoming an Eagle Scout, and maybe after college he would like to get back into scouting as a scout leader.

Precision shows in diving ability

Nikki Kelsey started diving in fifth grade. Now in tenth grade, she is diving for Ike's swim team and learning a great deal.

Nikki has achieved many goals since she started diving at Eisenhower. She is ranked in the top six in the area, she received third place out of twenty-two girls in the Tri-Cities Championships, and she has even succeeded in qualifying for the state meet by placing sixth at regionals.

To help herself with her diving skills, Nikki attended a Michigan State University diving camp for five days. Nikki practices every day during the season for an hour and a half after school and sometimes on weekends at Delta College, teaching herself new dives and polishing old ones.

Nikki says she has learned a great deal about diving since she came to Eisenhower and she thinks her diving has really improved. Her best dives are the front two somersault and the inward one and a half.

Out of all this, Nikki's biggest goal is to beat the varsity record of 249 points by her senior year.

Activities enrich sophomore

Before entering high school, Michael York displayed his interests in spelling bees and racing bicycles. Now, a sophomore, he balances these activities along with involvement in debate and art.

Michael is an honors student at Eisenhower and has shown his ability at both middle school and high school levels. Michael participated in the Mackinaw spelling bee in the eighth grade and did so well he went to the National Spelling Bee in Washington and placed 51 out of 126 students there. Here at Ike, Mike really enjoys the challenge of debate. Along with his partner, Phil Yien, Michael participated in the state novice tournament.

When not studying, Michael enjoys bike racing and drawing. He became interested in bicycles in the seventh grade. He races his bike all over Michigan, as often as possible. To keep in shape Michael rides about 30 miles a day on his "Rally". He has done his best at a race in Jackson placing second.

Along with receiving honors in bike racing, Michael has achieved an honorable mention in an art contest. Michael enjoys art and draws a great deal in his spare time. He became interested in art in middle school where he attended the center of the arts in eighth grade.

Michael feels that all of these things will do their part in helping him reach other goals in the future.

Dancing provides relief from school pressures

"I like the reactions I get from people when I tell them I dance." For sophomore Beth Creel, these responses add to the excitement of her dance career. Dancing for the past eleven years, Beth has learned many various routines in tap, ballet, and jazz from the Nelson Curtis Dance Center.

Enrolled when she was six, Beth continued the lessons because of her growing interest in dance. She also felt it enhanced her muscle coordination and physical condition. Dancing in the highest level classes at the Curtis Center, Beth dances two nights a week in classes filled with a demand for concentration and strenuous physical activity.

Recitals are held every spring at the Civic Center in which all of the dance classes show off their achievements. Beth has also been a part of jazz performances at Fashion Square Mall expositions.

Beth plans to continue her dancing throughout her remaining high school years. Following graduation, many things are in store for Beth's future. She wishes to become enrolled in a New York School of the Arts, or to be found touring with Nelson Curtis. Visions of performing in a dance company or a career in teaching dance also occupy Beth's train of thoughts of the years yet to come. But whatever does happen, Beth is sure to become even more involved in dance and the stage.

Freshman plans on pursuing art

Finding ways to fill spare time is no problem for Jennifer Lundahl.

When Jennifer was about nine or ten years old, she began drawing and painting as a way to spend her extra hours. She took drawing classes when she was eleven and went on to painting classes in her eighth grade year. She enjoys drawing animals and people, and painting scenery.

Jennifer entered some of her projects into the Saginaw Fair where she recieved third and fourth place ribbons for her efforts.

In the future, Jennifer plans on pursuing a career in Commercial Art Design. After being involved in Art classes her freshmen year, Mr. Walt Nagel comments,"She's a quiet–hardworking girl who has progressed rapidly in class."

BMX appeals to Brett Hall

Before Brett Hall even started high school, he was well on his way to success. Brett is a BMX racer, and has been racing bikes since the age of eleven. Now, at fourteen, he has worked his way up to become an expert.

Although racing bikes is a very expensive sport, Brett receives support from his sponsor, Factory Skyway, for a great deal of his expenses, including clothing and bike equipment.

Brett really enjoys racing bikes, he states, "The sport has no limits, all ages race all kinds of bikes, and I have learned a lot from the sport, especially how to be a good sport."

The sport is nationwide and Brett has much competition in his age group. He has succeeded in placing fourth in the state this year, and seventh in the nation last year. The racing is only on the weekends, so it doesn't interfere with his school work and sports at Ike. Brett has been very athletic his freshman year and he hopes that racing bikes will get even better in his future years at Eisenhower. by Martha Olson

Capture the spirit

"We have spirit yes we do, we have spirit how 'bout you?" This could have been one of the questions Eisenhower cheerleaders could have asked you. Getting psyched-up at a game can really determine whether a team will win or lose. The more spirit backing of a team, the better the outcome will be.

Cheerleaders' dedication and school spirit has not only brought the teams they cheer for success, but has also brought victory to Eisenhower with awards for their cheering efforts.

During the summer, Eisenhower's varsity squad attended a cheerleading camp held at Delta. Not only did the spirit leaders win superior and excellence ribbons, but they also were awarded the spirit award and the title of camp champions.

The Silver Dome competition was a very special and important event that our varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders attended. Two years in a row, the varsity took second place honors in finals. From this competition, they received another victory, another trophy, and one hundred dollars. The J.V. squad won sixth place and the varsity won third in preliminaries which enabled the varsity squad to perform during half-time at the Pistons game at the Silver Dome.

The cheerleading competition held at Fashion Square Mall against twenty other squads brought Eisenhower's varsity another third place.

This year's captains, who helped make Eisenhower's cheerleaders successful were: Nancy Schade (varsity), Kris Black (J.V.), and Carolyn Mitchell (freshman). Their advisor is Stevie Sargent.

Timing, execution, precision, endless practice, and personality projection are all very important traits of a cheerleader. But what makes cheerleaders successful is you, the crowd. So the next sporting event you attend, capture the spirit sensation and when the cheerleaders ask if you have spirit, you can answer: "We have spirit yes we do, we have spirit how 'bout you?"

Looks So Easy

They make it look so easy, all of those kicklines and dances, but Ike's pom pon performances involve many hours of dedication and exhausting work. After school practices are spent putting together original routines and working out with calisthenics and strenuous aerobics.

Varsity's hard work has been rewarded in the form of various trophies and awards that the group received in the summer of 1983. The girls brought home a first place for their outstanding kickline and their original routines won them a third place trophy.

The J.V. squad followed in their footsteps. Their camp awards included a second place for kickline, a first place for speed learning and a first for originality. The freshman pom pons had a new outlook this year. Their main function was to promote school spirit. Supporting athletic teams was on top of their list.

Continuous help and motivation came from their advisors Sue Bovee and Mary Wedding. Some of the music used in their performances included, "Far From Over" by Frank Stallone, "Human Touch" by Rick Springfield, "Got Me Under Pressure" by ZZ TOP and Aprilwine's "Future Tense".

Time spent on fundraisers, new ideas, camps and exhausting work proved their dedication; and that is what makes those kicklines look so easy!

Young yet qualified

Under the leadership of drum major, Emily Topp, the Eisenhower Pep Band was one of the largest Eisenhower has ever had. Underclassmen made up the majority of the seventy member band. For the first time, the Pep Band had a junior drum major. Because of her leadership qualities, Emily Topp stood proud in front of the band during many athletic events and pep assemblies. Directing the Eisenhower pep band again was Mr. Mike Vierow.

On September 10, the marching Commanders participated in the MSU Band Day. At halftime, along with twenty other high school bands, the Ike Pep Band marched onto the football field. Together, the bands entertained the crowd with many songs.

The Pep Band also displayed their talents in the Saginaw Pride Parade on November 19. The wet weather made their long march through Downtown Saginaw seem longer. Starting at Ojibway Island, the band marched three miles playing songs to please the listening crowd. Getting Saginaw Township in the Christmas spirit was another accomplishment of the band. On November 19, the marching band welcomed Santa Claus at Green Acres Plaza. Being the only band performing, they marched on Hemmeter Road and State Street leading Santa around the Plaza. Greeting Santa is a regular job for the Eisenhower and MacArthur bands. The bands take turns welcoming Santa Claus each year.

Accompanying the band at football games and parades was baton twirler, Lisa Larson. She showed her baton twirling abilities through her five different routines which she did with much skill. The flag girls also accompanied the band. The girls did short dance routines to the songs which the band played. Acting as colorguard captain was Tammy Hoffman.

The band boosters raised money by selling concessions at games and by selling fertilizer. The money raised was used for new music and instruments.

Club keeps traditions alive at Eisenhower

As the main spirit raising organization in the school, the Pep Club facilitated events ranging from dances and assemblies to selling sweatshirts and sponsoring health related activities.

The club's main event of the year was the 1983 Homecoming dance. The dance was a smash following the club's proud tradition. The Homecoming assembly was also a big hit in which the court and escorts were introduced.

Pep assemblies were also sponsored by the club to help raise the school's spirit to an unbelievable high and lead the athletic teams to winning seasons.

The Great American Smokeout wasn't just a "puff of smoke". Several students and faculty members vowed not to smoke on the day of this event, as the first step to quitting smoking for good.

In order to coordinate these activities, the Pep Club needed money. They raised this money through selling sweatshirts and working Bingo. The club also sold its traditional pom pons and buttons.

Many of the club's achievements were attained through the leadership of the officers and advisor, Mr. Russ Spaulding. President, Pam Wisniewski, Vice–President, Kelly Wiechelman, and Secretary–Treasurer, Trish Tappen, organized events and dispersed assignments to members which led the achievements of the club. The school's spirit, and its unforgettable events, made it a year to remember.

Blithe Spirit initiates year

The Drama Club's year started off this past summer with a picnic. The "Get Acquainted Party" was presided over by newly elected president, Hugh Watters, vice-president, Fred Clarke, and secretary-treasurer, Kelly Wiechelman.

After the start of school, the thespians took a tour of the Midland Center for the Arts.

The club's next activity was "Blithe Spirit", a play about a confused husband's battles with his ghostly wives. Pre-play preparations by Mr. Walt Nagel, Mr. Harry Martin, and their combined student forces, helped construct the background. All of this was going on while the actors rehearsed under the direction of Miss Ruth Anne Sowle.

Opening on November seventeenth and running through the nineteenth, it starred juniors, Caroline Chick, MaryBeth Hastings, Sean Howard, Diane Knights, and Emily Topp. There was also a sole senior, Marsh Jordan, and a freshman, Christine Fleener. The production was stage managed by Kim Hausbeck. According to Miss Sowle, the play was a "sizable success".

President Hugh Watters of the German Club and Kris Preston, president of the French Club, worked diligently to get their clubs to Europe.

Mrs. Darel Reed, German teacher, sponsored a two week trip to Europe. To help pay for the trip, she organized a reverse paper route to collect used newspapers and cardboard. Mrs. Reed and a few other members of the German Club went door to door to ask people to save their newspapers for them. They had to collect 2,000,000 pounds of newspapers to pay for 22 students to go on the trip.

The paper route was not their only means of money. They also sold posters and calendars to raise the money.

Under the leadership of Kris Preston, student club president, the French Club and Mrs. Wilda Rozyla, club advisor, earned enough money to travel to Europe. The club sponsored a hay ride on November 12, which was a big hit. They also had a food sale, where they sold different kinds of French foods, such as French Onion soup and hors d'oevres. This turned out to be the most profitable.

Selling gift boxes was another means of income for the French Club.

Sophomores take control of Latin Club

President Kim Chuo of the Spanish Club and the rest of the members decided to take it one step at a time. They devoted their time to having fun. Club members went horseback riding in October, and had a Christmas party at Casa Del Rey on December 30. One of their most enjoyable events was a sleigh ride in January.

Other officers included in the Spanish Club were: Vice-President Sue Abbe, Secretary Paula Klerekoper, and Treasurer JoEllen Chamberlin. Serving as advisor was Mrs. Nancy Nelson.

President Lucy Brabraj, Vice-President Matt Fischer, and Secretary-Treasurer Jim Kleinfelder were all sophomores. The three of them worked together to organize the club's activities. They worked together with the Spanish Club to sell jackets. The money they raised helped pay for their trip to the University of Michigan where they went through the Museum of Art on March 10.

The three officers were not the only underclassmen, but the majority of the members were underclassmen also. Acting as advisor Wilda Rozyla.

The Eisenhower Forum was the governing body of the school and also the organizer of many activities which occurred over the school year. They sponsored all of the student government elections. The Blood Drive Competition against MacArthur was also sponsored by Forum. Eisenhower won by giving 41 pints and MacArthur, 30. Spook and Spirit Day was one of the bigger events produced by their organization. Some of the events that took place that day were Class Spirit Competitions, the collection for UNICEF, and a pizza auction.

Most of these events were common to those that Forum sponsored in preceding years but what made them different was that the members were doing them voluntarily without receiving a credit. Declining enrollment had caused some classes to be cut and Forum was one of them. Forum had to meet outside regular class hours whenever necessary, meaning many members gave up their lunch hour to get the job done.

Elections for the 1983–84 Forum officers were held at the first formal meeting in the fall. The results were; President, Susan Fontaine, Vice–President, Shelly Heney, Secretary, Nikki Hall, and Treasurer, Julie Brasseur. Their advisor was Mr. Jim Rummler.

The word for the choral department of 1983–84 was "busy". Long rehearsals and hard practices were spent in preparation for the many public appearances that were made. The department consisted of a girls chorus with a smaller group of nine select girls, who sang solos and group ensembles, and also, Pieces of Eight.

The chorus performed at various nursing homes, the Community Hospital, Fashion Square Mall, the State Capital Building, in concert at the school, along with many other community performances.

The Pieces of Eight was made up of eight junior and senior girls who are picked for their talented vocal ability. There were three returning members; Melissa Bila, Carol Joswiak, and Trisha Tappen with five new members; Gwen Chojnacki, Sandy Faulkner, Lori Giacoletti, Dawn Meyers, and Debbie Thompson. The singing octet performed song and dance routines to a combination of music styles. They sang over 35 times out in the community throughout the year at luncheons, meetings, parties, home sports events, etc., as well as where the chorus performed. For fun they have gotten together with Triple Trio from MacArthur every year.

The choral department was directed by Mrs. Linda Schopp.

If you were to describe in one word the 1983–84 season for the Eisenhower debate team, that word would be optimism. Optimism in the first year, for "novice" debaters.

Eisenhower participated in two leagues, each holding their respective rounds on Mondays. The Central State Forensic League held its debates at Mt. Pleasant High School. The Lower Thumb B Debate League debates take place at Frankenmuth and Essexville Garber high schools.

After losing several varsity debaters from last year, injections of fresh, new blood were needed in the veins of the debate program. The new blood came in the form of novice speakers, Lisa Blanchet, Mark Dahley, Crissy Douglas, Krista Hansen, Sue Johnson, Nikki Kelsey, Jodi Klemish, Peter LeMieux, Lorlean Miller, Soni Mithani, Shelly Morrisette, Marion Prudhomme, Tom Schwannecke, Major Tong, Phil Yien, and Mike York. The novices' proudest moment came in the State Preliminaries in Ann Arbor, where they finished with a 3–5 record.

The varsity roster included regulars, Caroline Chick, Fred Clarke, Marybeth Hastings, Sean Howard, and Dave Singh. The affirmative team of Caroline and Marybeth remained consistent throughout the season. The negative team started with Sean and Dave, but changed constantly afterward. Novice debaters were even thrust into the role of varsity negative. The varsity debaters organized themselves in time to pull together a 4–9 record in the Lower Thumb B League and an 8–8 record in the Central State League. Marybeth won a speaker award at a Fall invitational in Frankenmuth.

First year coach, Mr. Roland Crane, organized the team. Mr. Crane also taught the new half credit debate class. Many debaters on the team were not enrolled in the class. By Phil Yien

Forensics saved by new coach

Getting started was the roughest part for Forensics. Cancelling the forensics program was an option because of the lack of an after-school coach and fund raisers.

Thanks to Karis Hastings, the new forensics coach, the team was saved. At the Essexville-Garber tournament, Nathan Blecke and Curt Harding placed third in humorous events. They were the only two who placed from Eisenhower.

The Forensics course, a class held on school time, included such events as multiple reading, dramatic interpretation, sales speaking, humorous and serious interpretation, radio news, broadcasting, informative and impromptu speaking, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and dramatic duo.

Councils lead student body

Fund raising was the main goal with the four class councils. The Senior Class Council had many things going at once. To show their school pride, they sold Eisenhower Commander key chains. At the beginining of the year the senior yearbook pictures were top on the priority list. Because of the successful fund raisers, the senior council was able to have the senior photo section in color in the yearbook. Selling candy again proved to be a great fund raiser. From this profit, the seniors followed the tradition of leaving a senior gift behind for the school.

Prom, the formal dance of the year was the main concern with the Junior class council. Even with the time and patience spent on this dance, the members of this council still put time aside to raise money for their senior color portraits in the yearbook and class trips.

In their second year at Eisenhower the Sophomore Class Council knew right away what was in store for them. The planning of trips, like Cedar Point and canoeing, were just two of the topics listed on their agenda. The council members got into the Christmas spirit by selling everything from Christmas cards to Christmas paper. They also used their selling ability in the school store.

Freshman class council was the first class in Eisenhower's history to win the Thanksgiving food drive for UNICEF and the student center decoration during Spook and Spirit week. These achievements gave the class of '87 the ambition to show the Commanders that freshmen don't always come in last. During the year the council members also planned a day to go tobogganing and also a day at Crystal Mountain to go skiing.

Twelve-pager popular among students

Professional magazine layout highlights staff efforts

Large photos, new and exciting stories, and topics which catch the interest of the student body were what the 1983–84 staffers of THE WORD periodical newspaper established as their goal. This goal was carried out in the seven issues of THE WORD, throughout the year.

The staff succeeded in producting a quality paper every month, with the help of several fundraisers. Selling family portraits, passing along the tradition of Current Stationery, and selling cheese and sausage paid off, and provided a stable budget for the year.

Heated editorials sparked the community's readers issue by issue. The student body battled it out with a war between the cliques.

THE WORD, which was an eight-page tabloid with magazine layout, had a staff of which took pride in the quality of copy, subjects and layout of its paper.

In its second year of using the Xerox 820 Information Processing computer, the yearbook staff joined together to grind away at the tough task of producing the popular Introspectus 1984. Eisenhower's yearbook was the first to be processed by the Intercollegiate Press Incorporated in this typestar program in the country.

The staff raised money by selling advertisements, Pub Subs, and by having a Valentine Computer dating project. The money was used to pay off the $14,000 production.

With the help of their advisor, Elizabeth Spaulding, the staff worked at overcoming their innexperience. Consisting mainly of upper classmen, they shared the task of both photography and layout. This gave the underclassmen a chance to learn both jobs, and to carry them out next year.

The 1984 book marked the tenth year as advisor for Elizabeth Spaulding.

This years fashion took on a different look. For both guys and girls the new trend was dressier and more original.

Guys were no longer wearing just jeans and T-shirts, but more sweaters and corduroys. Parachute pants were also widely seen throughout the halls at Ike, many with checkered shoes. For the guys trying to be "different", bandanas tied around their legs and pierced ears became the new look.

The female population at Ike was wearing more dresses and pumps. The way the girls dressed, like the guys, became more individual every day. Another item that inhabited Ike throughout the year was boots. Girls wore boots tucked in, left out, with pants, and with dresses. Not only did they look good, but they were practical as well.

Bandanas were also donned by the girls as a show of individuality.

For both genders, dark colors populated the winter months, along with bold checks and stripes. Spring and the approaching summer saw pastels, and cropped pants.

The fashion trends were described as comfortable and unique. From denim to leather, chains to earrings and from sweaters to sweatsuits, the look was individual.

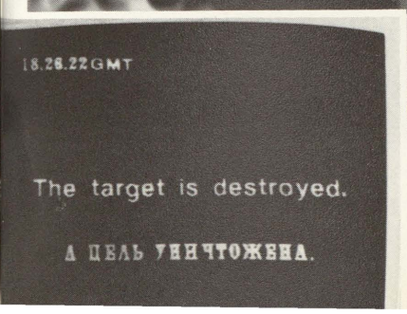
At 5:36 a.m. on a Tuesday in October the United States sent 6,000 troops to the once sleepy island of Grenada. The original purpose of the invasion was to protect the lives of the 1,000 Americans who were trapped on the island after a left-wing military attack. Later it was revealed that Grenada was becoming a Soviet-Cuban base that would threaten United States strategic interests in the Caribbean, this only intensified the invasion.

The Americans in Grenada were returned home but the marines would occupy the island for a long time to come.



The attack began in September of 1983. Korean Air Lines Flight 007 had been cold-bloodedly blasted out of the skies by a missile-firing Soviet interceptor, with an all but certain loss of 269 lives, 61 of which were Americans.

Captain Chun Byung had apparently flown off course into Soviet territory. After being tracked for two and a half hours the unarmed civilian Korean jetliner was shot down and twelve minutes after the attack, Flight 007 dropped off the screens.

During the 1983–84 school year, several students participated in taking a survey. This survey was done to recap the year's favorites. The year's top music performer was Michael Jackson. He topped the survey in three categories. The area's newest radio station, Foxy 101 (WFXZ), earned its way to the top by playing a wide variety of music. At the top of the comedians list, Eddie Murphy ranked number one. Murphy's popularity was gained by the commonly watched "Saturday Night Live" and the HBO presentation of his concert, "Delirious". The most ridiculous category was the favorite mexican restaurant on Bay Road. Musical videos gained popularity by the commonly viewed M–TV and Friday Night Videos.

The switch is off...according to Eisenhower students. The battle of the burger was won by McDonald's Big Mac. Even though Burger King didn't win the battle of the burger, they succeeded in gaining the top position in the "most obnoxious commercial" category.

Kelly (coni-buddy) Keep the crazy times coming, they keep me sane! Love ya, Stoads

John- When is lunch? Bedtime Bear

Karen, You've made my last two years at Ike great. I had a riot during Prom "83" and Homecoming. I think we are going to add to our collection of numbers 30 & 46 and take more courses in Webster. Love Dean
P.S. Wait till Florida when the real fun starts.

Trisha, I never meant for things to turn out the way they did. People change, and I know I've changed a lot this last year. I'm sorry if I hurt you. I never meant to. You know if we look back to eighth grade at the same time things were just as bad between us as they are now. The only difference is we had the time then to make things better. I guess the only thing left to say is I'm sorry. Shawn.

Dawn- I'm glad you don't hate me this year! HA HA Remember all those Fridays this year & Paula's? Loverboy, Pinconnng, your B-day? Let's keep 'em commin'! Don't let your house get TP'ed!!! Luv, Amy

Matt (map)- Thanks for being such a great friend. You're really sweet! Hope you don't forget me when you're a senior. Luv, Amy (ASL)

Lin and Kim---Are you feeling OK?!--- Cor

Paula-I'm glad we became friends. You're really sweet! That was a good party! Hope we can have more. It's been a great year! Luv Amy

Lisa-I think we've made up for last year with all the things we did this year. All those Fridays! Remember?-5, Rusty, the party, Loverboy, your B-day, the slumber paryt w/C. Pinconnig, & Meijer's. It's TP season again! Think we can top this year? Luv, BB-Amy

Lisa To the bestest friend in the whole world. Thanks for all the good memories Keep in touch. Love you always Brenda

Chris M Louise O Lisa A You guys are great. Thannx for being such great friends RMA Love Tracy

Martha You're a great friend and I'm glad that after 8 years we're still close. Thanx for being there Keep in touch Love Tacy

Susan, Our final year is up. Cheerleading is over. I can sit back and laugh at all the fun things we have done through the years. Remembering things like beaner, regionals, state, and especially all the fun we've had. Thanx for being the best cousin ever; we will succeed! Karen

Kelly, Whitney, Tammy, Jaque, Kris, Pam, Krista, Each of you know what you and your friendship means to me, we've been through a lot and the memories won't be forgotten! Jen

Polock, We've been through so much!! T.H. started our fun! Ha ha. You have to remember C.P. with Mesh Man and Tanktop Man! KI was also the best! Too bad we don't know how to tell time! Next time we go to Ann Arbor I will go out too!! I'm so glad you were there for me but remember this, I will always be there for you. Love Kraut

Trisha, Alaina, Melissa, Thanks for just being you and letting me be me! Love Jennifer.
P.S. Black cars look good on us...

Shelley,
You are so special to me and mean so much that words could never say! This year was the best and you were such a big part of it. I hope we have many more good times together.
Love Tom

Sperry, Bill, Whit, Thanks for a great senior year. The times we shared together were the absolute best. May we always remain the best friends! Go Spartans and LSSC! "STRIP..." Krista

Don't worry "Roge", it will grow!

Kimmy, Hey dude, where's the party? Alkie

Bill, Look out MSU! Swinging doors, fish, lambda Chi's, etc.Shades and bandanas forever! You radical! Bob

"Lil cuz, You mean the world to me! Love ya, cuz

Senior girl, I want to party with you. Other senior girl

Anne, It's been four years since we met in Humanities and I think we've grown up just a little. Between research papers, publications, and the hospital, we've managed to have a few laughs. Despite the fact that U of M is better and you're going to State, I hope we stay friends! Love, Julie Sperry, Whit, Bill-We're just following ancient history...!

SLEE, BUT REALLY MRS. NELSON WE DID. SLEE GET THE BI-ALL!! B.B. LAY

Jeff, We've had our ups and downs but somehow I think we managed to come out of everything as good friends. We've had some good memories, and somehow I don't think my high school years would have been the same without them. I hope you'll always know that I'll be here for you if you ever need someone. You'll always be special to me. Love Amy

What's the deal "Roge"?

Miss Spaulding and Mrs. Fleener, Thanks for your advice and support. Senior Class Council

To the biggest and nicest teaser I know-"Ann"! Petra

Julie B., You Court Theatre buddy you. Thanks for always being there when I needed someone to talk to. You've helped me through some tough times. Thanks! We'll come see you at State. Love Ya, Dorny

To our closest friends,
Our final years are coming to an end,
Our broken hearts will be hard to mend.
We'll always remember the great times we had,
None of them really were ever that bad.
Some things we did were considered a sin,
The question is, "How did they begin"?
Friday night games and late night dances,
Those were the nights we took our chances.
Out team was on the field without a fear,
It was us in the stands yelling that final cheer.
Sue was our Possom Queen, Scott was our King,
The Beverly Hillbillies theme we all joined to sing.
Toilet papering "the carrot" was always fun,
Until we got caught before we were done.
Mallery's cottage was always a ball,
Just looking at the pictures tells it all.
After the ditch the green bomb will never by the same,
That is one car we know that earned its name.
"All right you ————————", as Lun would say,
She still says it to this day.
Fantasy will always be our theme,
For that is the song that made us a team.
Ross' parties linger in the mind,
For those are the ones we had grea times.
As we pulled out of the parking lot of Sanford park,
The police car followed – we wonder who narked.
Kochville is beginning to be the place,
Where everybody goes to drink a case.
Out of her mouth it came like a hose,
but who really knows?
T.J. Wrecker with all his might,
Was called upon one Friday night.
Beird's poor bonfire we all carved our names,
That poor tree will never be the same.
Haeger's slumber party we didn't play cards,
We were too busy toilet papering Navarro's yard.
Maddog and teddies don't really mix,
Just ask Julie, she'll tell you this.
"Facial Steiter" as the freshman class said,
As Stacy ran down with her face all red.
Rakin' til 2:30 was always funny,
Cause Julie wouldn't have until it was sunny.
Mallery's parties are hard to top,
For those are the ones that never stop.
Their surprise entrance was as quiet as a mouse,
Then the B–team climbed to the roof of Mal's house.

We are the C–team stand so proud,
Trying to sneak around bushes were a bit too loud.
Toilet paperirng MacArthur, a highlight of our year,
As MacArthur game was growing near.
At the pep assemblies we have the loudest shout,
It's the class of "84" that knocks the others out.
When someone has a problem one of us is always there,
Everybody should know that each of us cares.
All memories we hold,
Are as precious as gold.
Our friendship is not ending, it's only a start,
For these are the memories kept close to our hearts.
As we sit here thinking of our past years,
But our reunion days will soon grow near.
You'll remember this evening for the rest of your life,
So have a great time and stay out all night!
Love ya's always Lun and Mal

Boo, Some more memories...Did I drive?? Beach Bum..Caseville..All Nighter..Well Luv Ya

Varsity Cheerleaders, This year's been great, at least we made it to State!I'll never forget: the rolling eyes, attitudes, "The mount comes tumbling down", and our favorite buddies who like to write articles to make us laugh. Always remember: open people, D&D, M&M, BK, 20 seconds, and all of the others! Let's never let the good times end! Best of luck always! Love ya, Me

Freddie, someday we're going to have to give up this life...nah! Who could fill our shoes? Hugh

Sue, I dont know how I've put up with your abuse. Maybe it's because you're so wonderful, or maybe not! Love muchly, Hugh DI, remember Flicker, frootloops, Karen's party, 4:30 mass, JC, JE, Ron Smith, kicking at the dance, do you have a watch?, calling Mac's, want to crank LeAnn's?, and Cindi, I love Tom Selleck forever, who else but me. CAPPY!

Bruce, Brian, Joel, and Randy, The HOGS will always rule. The best linemen in the WPC. Thanks for a great season–Fred

Jeff–what can I say. I don't know what it will be like next year without ya. You have a special way of making me smile and making my days. You mean a lot to me and always will, but no matter where you are or whatever happens, just call my name...and I'll be there. Love ya always, Stace

UNCLE CARL: THANKS FOR PUTTING UP WITH OUR GARBAGE ALL YEAR. TAKE CARE, FREDDIE & HUGH

C–Team you guys made my years. I love ya and I'll never forget all our great times. Love Teddy Odie, you made my senior year at Eisenhower the best. I will always love you for that. Homecoming night was a dream come true. Thanks for the times we had together even though too few, they were the best. Thanks for your help in getting through the year. You are the girl who turned my heart around. All my love, Maynard.

To the B–Team & fellow C–Team members–I gould never begin to write down all the memories we have shared. Thanks for the best high school days anyone could ask for. Love Lun

Urs, thanks for always listening to me and being my friend. Andy

LIN AND KIM---ARE YOU FEELING OK!?--- COR

Tracy, will we finally made it! It's hard to believe we've known each other so long and you're not sick of me yet. Remember all the great times. I hope you'll never forget me, then again how could you? Love Martha

To whom it may concern, C=6 (still)

Dear C'Team–it's been real, always remember beach parties, dances, Mals cottage, the B'Team and Betty Carrot. Love ya Stace–Head Custodian.

Suzie, you're the best sister anyone could ask for. Good luck Beth

HONEY JUGS– The summer of '83 was the best ever. How could it end so fast? From Rick Gross to "Help me Da–da," fun fun! I told you we were drifting apart. Dave and the trip to Europe did some damage. I wish you would've realized when I needed you the most you were at the warehouse. "Now its the close of the show. Let's hope it all passes by in the end. So get yourself along. You WERE my best friend."–DYNAMO

Stacey ann Stoich memories: Freddie, Barney, I.Z.M.M.S.B.B.H, tears, lunch, Rick James, coldblooded!! Oh---- !McDonalds, Burger King, Summertime!!!! Visiting people, we have had alot of great times!! Together, we've been through so much!!

COR, DON'T LET THE RADS MAKE YOU CRAZY! REMEMBER THE NOTES AND OUR H. BUDDIES. BREN

Ben you got to let him know, Steraw, Soccer. You're very special to me and I love you. Have fun and if you ever need me I'll be there! Don't forget to visit me. Love ya 5 Ben

Katy, Scott, Nikki, Tim, Micky, Kristin, ready to pull another all–nighter? Kochville, here we come–Ready or not!! Luv ya Laur
